

Vubiz Wins City of Toronto Vendor Contract

Thursday, December 12, 2011 -- Vubiz is pleased to work with Canada's largest city, sixth largest government, and city home to 2.6 million people to provide eLearning services. The City of Toronto consists of 44 divisions representing a variety of service areas. As the largest municipal government in Canada, the City needs staff who are skilled, competent, and confident, to carry out the work effectively and efficiently and to build relationships with the community, Council and colleagues. One way to meet these challenges is a commitment to provide a range of training and development opportunities through the City's Human Resources- Corporate Learning and Leadership Development Unit--and Vubiz is excited to have been selected to help the City achieve its goals.

By providing eLearning courses and course development for Toronto Public Service, Vubiz will directly assist the City to execute on its Learning Strategy for management and executive development, professional/technical training for service area and legislatively mandated training. The City needs to anticipate the changing needs of the public and equip people with the skills to respond in innovative and cost effective ways to meet those needs.

This strategy is the guide to realizing the goal of the City becoming a learning organization and Vubiz is proud to be a part of this exciting endeavour.
